Propriety and Protocol:

During CIT Week, you are encouraged to say hello and introduce yourself to any of the Fung Loy Kok Directors/ Program Leaders.

In some ways, we might think of the Center as our family home. From this perspective then, some hints about the way we relate to others as part of Master Moy Lin Shin's teachings might be helpful. We are not guests in this home; we are family. As family members, we have a responsibility to do the tasks that need doing. Traditionally, the tasks surrounding the events of the stay are accomplished by all of the participants. Cleaning, cooking, tidying, setting up -- tasks of any home -- are accomplished by all of us. This tradition is called "eyes see, hands do."

Master Moy's legacy is vast and reaches far beyond the specific Taoist arts that he taught us. If you think of your experience at the Center as an opportunity to learn about all aspects of Taoist life here, it will bring you in touch with tai chi becoming a part of your everyday life. Learn how many things can be accomplished by working together when caring for the Center.

All activities during your stay are part of your continuing training and are companions to the Tor-Yu and Dan-Yu and the Taoist arts that we learn. Taking these traditions back to your branch location will enrich what you have there. When leaving, be sure to say goodbye and thank instructors and others who have helped you.

Be an Ambassador for Your County or Region:

Ask others about their area, and educate others about yours. Be open to meeting other participants from around the world. Friendship and Harmony are important to ensure a strong community. Observe what others do. Keep your eyes open, and when in doubt, ask. There is, for example, much interesting cultural information that may be exchanged when sharing a meal.

We look forward to seeing you at the CIT Week November 2019.
